

Society Aims and Objectives

Academic

Accounting and Finance Society

To join together all who have an interest in accounting or finance.

Advocacy

The Advocacy Society aims to revive an existing but currently inactive society, with the purpose of providing students from all courses the opportunity to develop their advocacy skills in practical, engaging ways. Our focus is on equipping members with the tools needed to excel in oral advocacy, whether they are aspiring to become barristers, solicitors, or professionals in other fields where public speaking and argumentation are essential. By focusing on hands-on activities and practical training, we aim to fill a gap in the current student experience, offering something unique and highly beneficial to those interested in improving their advocacy abilities.

As part of our revival, we will offer public speaking workshops, speed mooted sessions, mock bail hearings, fortnightly debates on current issues and Q&A events with various legal and non-legal professionals. Additionally, we plan to host social events, such as a Christmas social, pub quizzes, end of year formal dinner to foster a sense of community while maintaining our core educational focus. These activities will provide a supportive and engaging platform for students to gain confidence and practical experience in legal advocacy, all while building connections with their peers and professionals.

Our society is designed to be a dynamic and enriching space where members can sharpen their advocacy skills and enhance their overall legal expertise, preparing them for future success in any legal career path they choose.

AeroSoc

To improve the identity and strengthen the community for University of Liverpool students studying or has an interest in the Aerospace Engineering field.

Anatomy Society

The Anatomy Society is exclusively for students studying Anatomy and Human Biology to support them through their years at Liverpool University. We aim to provide additional guidance for our students and encourage further communication among the year groups through various events. Our members have access to a network of Anatomy Alumni to gain insight into future prospects following their degree, as well as ongoing welfare support provided by the committee.

Archaeology, Classics and Egyptology (SACE)

SACE is a society for people studying Archaeology, Classics and Egyptology, as well as Ancient History and Evolutionary Anthropology, and for those who have an interest in the ancient world!

We are a diverse and lively group of people who all have a common interest in understanding the past. From nights out to pub quizzes, and from museum trips to formal dinners, there are events for everyone to get involved in. Our sole aim is to promote the work our department undertakes and to unite members across our department and other departments.

ASOC Architecture Society

ASOC is a society that welcome all Architecture students and those with an interest in Architecture. We aim to provide a community that can understand the strain and demand of such an intense course and provide an outlet for students. Throughout the year we are keen to organise as many events as possible, that range from social to educational. This will include activities that develop architecture related skills; informal socials such as movie nights and/or planned nights out, and networking.

Banking and Finance Society

To inform students of careers in finance with a focus on investment banking, sales and trading, asset/wealth management, corporate finance and professional services as well as careers in profession/industry. To develop students in order that they might make competitive applications to these careers.

Bar Society

To provide students with the necessary skills and experience required to pursue a career as a barrister

Biochemistry Society

The biochemistry society is mainly for people taking a biochemistry degree to meet and get to know each other! Although, we are not exclusive to biochemist students and anyone with an interest in biochemistry is welcome to join. We are having numerous events including nights outs and activities both academic and social!

Biomedical Society

Our aim is to provide all students with a warm and welcoming environment to grow as individuals, as well as scientists. With themed pub crawls as well as guest speakers, society meals and much more, we hope to create a supportive community that shares a love for science.

Biosciences Society

- To allow students of all years to create memories together
- To provide a comfortable and social environment
- To provide a friendly working space for students that would want to work alongside others

Business Management Society

To bring students who study Business Management or business-related courses closer together.

Chemistry Society (ChemSoc)

To Unite Chemistry students across all years and put on events for the students.

Coding and Robotics

We are a society dedicated to engaging with electronics and coding at all levels, from complete beginners to professional level. No coding nor electronics skills are required to join the society and we accept everyone regardless of year and course. Anyone can learn coding and electronics.

Communications and Media Society

The Communications and Media society is a society formed by Communications and Media students for everyone not just the degree students. We are a society that is interested in anything media from movies, TV shows, news, games, radio, etc. We are a society that is open and free for people to express their opinions and love for any sort of media and its genre as we want to connect with everyone over their interests and hobbies whatever they may be within the media format.

Liverpool Computer Science Society (CompSoc)

The student-ran society for the Computer Science department. Welcoming all those with an interest in computer science, we run regular social gatherings to promote networking skills and to give those within the department an opportunity to get to know each other outside of lectures. We also run regular events of a more academic nature relating to Computer Science and technology (usually in the style of presentations or workshops) and, in conjunction with the computer science department, organise the end of year ball along with industry relation days, hackathons etc.

Data and AI Society

The aims of the Data Science and AI Society are: To provide a forum for students interested in data science, machine learning, and AI to learn, discuss, and collaborate. To foster an interdisciplinary community around data science and AI, connecting students across departments and encouraging AI Literacy in the student community. To invite industry speakers to share real-world applications of data science and AI. To develop members' data analysis, coding, and communication skills through hands-on projects. To help members' explore career opportunities in Data Science and AI

Diagnostic Imaging Society

The diagnostic imaging society is for people with a shared passion of medical imaging and medical physics! We want to provide a place to connect with others with similar interests both socially and academically. It is for people at all stages in university education, including post graduates. Our society aims to connect people with a shared passion into medical imaging at all stages of our university education. The purpose is to exchange knowledge and support each other in developing not only our technical skills, but our interpersonal skills, in our eld and as upcoming health professionals. As the next generation of members of the multidisciplinary team in the healthcare sector it is important for us to connect both with other practitioners within our eld and with other health professions. We aim to organise events both within our niche eld of diagnostic radiography, as well as organising events where we branch out and meet other healthcare societies and practitioners too.

Diversity in Law

Our society addresses the lack of diversity in the legal sector, but also brings those people affected by this together and ensures that diversity is celebrated. The Supreme Court panel features just three women, and every member is not from either black, asian or minority ethnic groups. This poses the question if those who uphold the highest form of law do not reflect the diversity within the UK, can justice really be carried out as well as it should be? Our journey towards a more diverse legal sector is perfect to begin at university.

Diversity in STEM

Diversity in STEM is a society dedicated to creating an inclusive and supportive space for people of colour pursuing STEM degrees. We celebrate diverse cultures through fun social events like cookouts, religious holiday celebrations, movie nights, and game nights. Beyond fostering community, we provide a platform for members to voice concerns and address challenges faced by people of colour in STEM, working together to promote a more equitable environment.

Economics Society

To make Economics and Business Economics more sociable and integrated courses. As well as creating a friendly environment for students to extend their academic knowledge.

English Society

To rectify the limited opportunity to bond with course-mates due to fewer contact hours than other subjects, through encouraging participation in social and educational activities outside of lectures, whilst providing a fun and welcoming community for all who would like to be involved.

Environmental Science

To evoke environmental change both on campus and throughout the city of Liverpool. This may be through helping the university achieve their environmental and sustainability goals or educating individuals on what they can improve on in their own lives (e.g. affordable and sustainable food choices/ transport choices). We would also love to bring together all years of Environmental Science students in a coherent manner, however this will not be the main goal for the society (as we would love all students to join) but would be a positive byproduct.

Fashion and Law Marketing Society

The societies purpose is to support those with an interest in Fashion, Marketing and the legal and ethical dilemmas related to both industries. We would like to form a group that is able to explore the careers possible in this sector and see how law and creativity can be mixed also. We look to provide academic activities and relaxed socials.

Geography

To unite all members of Geography and Environmental Science through socialising and having fun.

Girls in Computing

To help girls (or those who identify other than male) whom take Computer Science to be able to socialise with other girls in Computer Science To help girls in Computer Science to network with others To help girls in Computer Science to find opportunities for placements, internships and work experience to help grow their CV To have a community of girls in Computer Science that are able to help each other and discuss issues they are experiencing.

Educational Awareness – To educate members on the fundamentals of insurance, including risk management, policy types, and the role of insurance in financial security.
Professional Development – To provide networking opportunities, industry insights, and career guidance for students interested in insurance, underwriting, and actuarial sciences.
Workshops & Guest Lectures – To invite industry professionals for talks, seminars, and panel discussions to bridge the gap between academic knowledge and real-world applications.
Practical Learning – To conduct case study competitions, policy analysis sessions, and interactive simulations to help members develop problem-solving skills in insurance-related scenarios.
Public Awareness Campaigns – To organize outreach programs educating the wider community about the importance of insurance in financial planning and risk management.

International Law and Human Rights Society

The International Law Society is for aspiring international lawyers, diplomats, activists, etc - or just anyone with an interest in international affairs. You don't need to be a law student to join! In fact, a huge proportion of international law jobs don't actually require you to be a lawyer - there are tons of opportunities in research, administration, advocacy, etc.

International Business Society

We aim to create a sense of camaraderie among students who share a common interest in international business, to craft a welcoming environment for those who have pursued academic endeavours and have come back to finish their studies. This is an academic society, so even though we will hold exciting socials, where we will promote the development of networking skills, we also aim to encourage students to read around subject area they find interesting, through different types of media (for example, podcasts and TED talks).

Life Science Outreach Society

To enhance the public's knowledge of Life Sciences using our public engagement event.
To increase knowledge of what Life Sciences are and what studying Life Sciences at university means to Primary and secondary school age kids, using visits.

Liverpool Engineering Society

To help contribute to the success of the school as well as maintain and build on the existing efforts of our predecessors. Social events will continue to be run including the annual ball for both engineers and psychologists.

Mathematics Society (MathSoc)

To provide a place where students on Maths and other subjects can connect, make friends and have a great time together.

Mature Students Society

This society aims to support, inform and involve every single mature student at the University. We can't do this without our members so join today and look out for our upcoming events!

Nursing Society

To bring together all those studying nursing at University of Liverpool.

Pharmacology Society

Our main aim is to create a community among pharmacology students and students with an interest in pharmacology. When we started the course the academic staff expressed their want to connect the years together, which was met with agreement by us as students. Secondly, as Pharmacology is a highly competitive field we want to provide students with opportunities to begin professionally networking and gain awareness of key developments occurring in the industry.

Philosophy Society

To develop our society so that it can continue to offer both academic and non-academic support to all those interested in Philosophy at the University of Liverpool.

To provide a platform for students to meet people on their course and wants each member to embrace both the academic and social opportunities presented to them. With the society, the aim is for students to broaden their horizons and make the most of their time at university, learning new and different things with the variety of events psycsoc puts on and promotes throughout the year.

Sociology, Social Policy and Criminology Society (SSPC)

To unite the Social Justice department with academic and social events and activities.

Solicitors Society

To engage with law & non-law students interested in the career path of becoming a solicitor, equipping them with the skills to boost their employability prospects.

The Consulting Society

The aim of my society is to help like minded students who want to pursue the field of business or management consulting in the future connect with each other and foster a good relationship. Additionally, my society will also be relevant to students who want to explore an interest in the field or want to know more about it. I also want to conduct biweekly workshops with SMEs around Liverpool and Merseyside where they can come and explain their businesses to the students. We will be able to explore the operations angle and the consulting division in their businesses.

Women in Business

We aim to create a space where members can connect, collaborate, and thrive.

ZooSoc

To provide supplementary activities for Zoologists. This includes extra-curricular talks on topics of interest and potential career avenues, networking, volunteer experience and visits to pursue shared interests. It also aims to help provide more hands-on opportunities for zoologists to interact with animals and the environment. As C300 is a course that requires a lot of teamwork, especially on field courses and with a relatively small year group intake, the society also aims to help improve the social interaction between the year groups and give its members an opportunity to meet new people with a shared excitement for Zoology.

Hanfu (Chinese Traditional Clothing) Society

Society Aims: We are aware of the importance of Chinese culture in the international arena and the unique beauty of traditional Chinese clothing, Hanfu. However, we are also aware of the misconceptions and shortcomings, so we hope to bring positive cultural exchange and the hands-on experience for everyone to the campus through the creation of the Hanfu Society with a focus on educational experiences. The aim of the Hanfu Society is to promote and spread China's 5,000 years of traditional culture and clothing by providing everyone with the opportunity to try on Hanfu themselves, and to provide a platform for everyone who is curious about and enjoys Chinese culture and clothing to communicate with each other, and to promote mutual understanding and integration of different cultures through positive educational and cultural exchange activities. This includes: 1. Cultural Education: We will organise various activities such as some interactive workshops incorporating fun trivia games and costume demonstrations to gain a deeper understanding of the history, style and significance of Chinese Hanfu. This will help to dispel misconceptions about Chinese traditional clothing and make more people aware of its profound cultural value. 2. Traditional Festival Celebration: We plan to organise activities to celebrate traditional Chinese festivals, such as Chinese New Year, Dragon Boat Festival, etc. These activities will include experience in making and tasting traditional food, experiencing different fun games, etc. to let more people experience the uniqueness of the Chinese culture, and to learn about the origin of traditional festivals and how they are celebrated. 3. Cultural Exchange: The Hanfu Society will actively participate in multicultural activities on campus to promote intercultural exchange. We hope to provide international students with opportunities to learn about Chinese culture and traditions, and we strongly welcome them to share their own culture. 4. Community Involvement: The Hanfu Society will be actively involved in the local community, contributing to the multiculturalism of the city of Liverpool and promoting community integration and mutual understanding. Expected purpose of the society: Through the creation of the Hanfu Society, we hope to achieve the following intended purposes: 1. Promote understanding and respect for Chinese culture and traditional Chinese clothing. 2. Promote friendly exchanges between different cultures on campus and enhance the connection between international and local students. 3. To organise educational activities and provide opportunities for in-depth learning of Chinese culture. 4. To create a fun and educational social space on the University of Liverpool campus so that more people can learn about and enjoy the uniqueness of Chinese culture. We believe that the Hanfu Society will be a beneficial club that not only enriches the campus culture, but also provides more opportunities for international students to integrate into the campus community.
